2016 ARMED FORCES DAY

Armed Forces Day (3rd Saturday in May) was created in 1949 by then Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, to celebrate the unification of the Services under one department. It was designed to increase awareness of the Armed Forces among civilians.

- The theme of the first Armed Forces Day was "Teamed for Defense." It was chosen as a means of expressing the unification of all the military forces under a single department of the government.
- The first Armed Forces Day came at a time of increased world tensions, political volatility and communist aggression. Some notable events that marked America's first Armed Forces Week in 1950 included:
 - Norway receiving the first U.S. military aid in the form of two Dakota planes.
 - United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie seeking the West's acceptance of Red China in the United Nations.
 - The Red Cross celebration of its 69th birthday.
- Today, our U.S. armed forces continue to operate as a cohesive joint force and our Air Force is the foundation for multi-service, interagency and coalition operations. The Air Force provides our nation's joint team the ability and freedom to fight in the air, on the ground and at sea.

"Armed Forces Day, May 20, 1950, marks the first combined demonstration by America's defense team of its progress, under the National Security Act, towards the goal of readiness for any eventuality. It is the first parade of preparedness by the unified forces of our land, sea, and air defense."

- Former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, Washington D.C.

Mental Health Awareness Month

Mental Health is essential for peak cognitive and physical performance, and contributes to the readiness of our Airmen. Mental health affects us all as it influences our thoughts, feelings, actions, how we make decisions, interact with others and how we cope with daily stressors. Mental health is a factor of our overall wellbeing, much like physical health.

Check out Operation Live Well for tips on ways to manage your mental health, like taking care of essential physical and emotional needs.
